Introduction

I have drown an advertising poster made by a theatre company, The New Chamberlain's men (invented by me), for a conference about Shakespeare. Inside the project there is also a sonnet written by me.

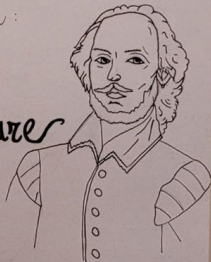

I hope you will enjoy!

Welcome to all of you, theater
fans!

Are you ready to discover the deepest features of your heart and soul?

I have a friend who can help you through this journey. May I introduce you:

William
Shakespeare

“Could anything be more relevant could words be more indicative, could something have this potential,
if does not Shakespeare with his plays?”

Long time has slowly passed mind death took his breath away meek knowing the cost it had counted and hard thoughts come and sadly wane.

Then the sound of an ancient voice our true self from the world escapes leaving aside the selfish loneliness finally letting my deepest players.

Sure that leading my life all this time
was him inside the light of my smile.”

These are the two sides of the poster:

the front

the back

Shakespeare was a man,
a man with a kind and courageous heart, able to perceive in his inside all the pain of others.

Shakespeare was one of a kind, an unique man who felt the emotions of the people around him, manifesting them in so many lives in other situations.

Shakespeare was a genius, a brilliant man who, deep inside his mind, held the essence of the entire humankind and who succeeded in showing on a stage its deepest secrets.

The Shakespearean characters come alive, each one of them from a different piece of reality, but soon they learn to live in a fictional universe, externalized from the heart of that brilliant and unique man.

Reading his lines and observing the magnificence of his art will help you to find your true selves, that simple piece which anchors you to reality, between the actions of the characters and their thoughtful speeches.

« Could anything be more relevant

could something have this potential,
if does not Shakespeare with his plays?

since death took his breath away never knowing the loss it had caused
and hard thoughts come and sadly wane.

Then the sound of an ancient verse our true self from the words escapes
finally lifting my deepest prayers.

Sure that leading my life all this time
